The individual has the right to request confirmation from the person responsible as to whether personal data relating to them are being processed; if this is the case, they have the right on information about this personal data and to the information listed in Art. 15 DSGVO.

The individual has the right to request the person responsible to immediately correct incorrect personal data concerning them and, if necessary, to complete incomplete personal data (Article 16 GDPR).

The individual has the right to demand from the person responsible that personal data concerning them be deleted immediately if one of the reasons listed in Art. 17 DSGVO applies, e.g. B. if the data is no longer required for the purposes pursued (right to erasure).

The individual has the right to demand that the person responsible restrict the processing if one of the conditions listed in Art. 18 GDPR is met, e.g. B. if the data subject has lodged an objection to the processing, for the duration of the examination by the person responsible.

The individual has the right, for reasons arising from their particular situation, to object at any time to the processing of personal data relating to them. The person responsible then no longer processes the personal data unless he can demonstrate compelling legitimate grounds for the processing which outweigh the interests, rights and freedoms of the data subject, or the processing serves to assert, exercise or defend legal claims (Art 21 GDPR).

Without prejudice to any other administrative or judicial remedy, each data subject has the right to lodge a complaint with a supervisory authority if the data subject believes that the processing of personal data concerning them violates the GDPR (Art. 77 GDPR).

The individual may assert this right with a supervisory authority in the Member State of their place of residence, their place of work or the place of the alleged infringement. In Schleswig-Holstein, the responsible supervisory authority is:
